

Bank Place, Melbourne
19 June 1883

My dear Andrew,

I have received yours of 16th inst. & its Enclosure which I have handed to Weston.

Agency. The Amount of allowance for Agency work varies but the practice adopted in this office & that generally in vogue is to allow the agent $\frac{1}{3}$ of the profits, i.e. the gross profits, merely deducting out of pocket charges.

I know Morgan very well. He is a comparatively young Doctor with very fair practice & reputation.

The same remarks apply to it of Brady who was one of my preceptors at Allen & Allens.

Several changes have occurred since I last wrote. I have returned to KCTD's taking the general management of the office (by arrangement) bringing Mr. Watson's business with me. Weston has received his congé but I have obtained ~~another~~ another situation for him in an office where he will have better chances of promotion.

His new "Chief" is Mr J. J.
Myburn, Esq. Elizabeth St.
I don't know why his services were dispensed with but I think on the scores of slackness & Economy. He is in very good health & spirits but I don't at present see much of him owing partly to my health which continues very delicate & to the fact of my ~~father~~ brother

This wife being frequently (too frequently) at my house.
Thank heavens. They leave this week & I can then breathe more freely & indulge my private likings.
I think my brother an unsuffe^{ring} bore & he grows daily more obnoxious. He has also put me in great pecuniary straits owing to his almost total failure to comply with his promise to contribute to my household expen^{ses}.
You see I am a trifle dull & dependant, but I hope to write in a different strain next time.

Yr haste, Thine ever
